

FEELING LUCKY BOOKMARK

Legend has it that leaves of the shamrock (♣) represented hope, faith, and love, and that every so often, God would add another leaf for luck. Thus, the four-leaf clover became considered a symbol of good luck in the Irish culture (♣).

To commemorate this magical holiday, I have written a bookmark pattern based on the shamrock leaf. Bookmarks are quick and satisfying makes that are especially appreciated by booklovers! So, are you ready to make your own luck today?

Once you have tried this, if you have any suggestions on how to improve the final product, please let me know at mindandmuse@gmail.com.

MATERIALS:

- Cotton yarn.
Note: I tested this pattern with several brands and varied gauges of cotton yarn including: DMC Petra Cotton #5, (color 5905, pictured), Peaches and Cream (in Forest Green), Aunt Lydia's Mercerized Cotton #3 (in Sage), Lino Royal by Wolle Rodel (worsted weight yarn that is 40% linen, 32% viscose and 28% cotton, discontinued(?))

GAUGE: It has not been established for this pattern. When making slip stitches, however, take care to keep a loose tension.
